INVOCATION

CONFESSION
In unison:
Eternal God, in whom we live and move and have our being, whose face is hidden from us by our sin, and whose mercy we forget: cleanse us from all offenses, and deliver us from proud thoughts and vain desires; that humbly we may draw near to thee, confessing our faults, confiding in thy grace, and finding in thee our refuge and our strength, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Psalm 139:1–5, 12–18 Domine, probasti chant by Herbert Howells (1892–1983)
Sung by the choir

O Lord, thou hast searched me out, and known me.
Thou knowest my down-sitting, and mine uprising;
thou understandest my thoughts long before.

Thou art about my path, and about my bed;
and art acquainted with all my ways.

For lo, there is not a word in my tongue,
but thou, O Lord, knowest it altogether.

Thou hast beset me behind and before,
and laid thine hand upon me.

Such knowledge is too wonderful and excellent for me;
I cannot attain unto it.

For my reins are thine;
thou hast covered me in my mother's womb.

I will give thanks unto thee, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made:
marvellous are thy works, and that my soul knoweth right well.

My bones are not hid from thee,
though I be made secretly, and fashioned beneath in the earth.
Thine eyes did see my substance, yet being imperfect;
and in thy book were all my members written;
Which day by day were fashioned,
when as yet there was none of them.

How dear are thy counsels unto me, O God;
O how great is the sum of them!
If I tell them, they are more in number than the sand:
when I wake up, I am present with thee.

DOXOLOGY
Sung by the congregation, standing
Praise God, from whom all blessings flow;
Praise God, all creatures here below;
Praise God above, ye heavenly host,

FIRST LESSON
Psalm 1
Happy are those who do not follow the advice of the wicked,
or take the path that sinners tread,
or sit in the seat of scoffers;
but their delight is in the law of the Lord,
and on his law they meditate day and night.
They are like trees
planted by streams of water,
which yield their fruit in its season,
and their leaves do not wither.
In all that they do, they prosper.
The wicked are not so,
but are like chaff that the wind drives away.
Therefore the wicked will not stand in the judgment,
nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous;
for the Lord watches over the way of the righteous,
but the way of the wicked will perish.
ANTHEM
“How Excellent Thy Name, O Lord”
from Saul, HWV 53 (1738)

George Frideric Handel

How excellent thy name, O Lord,
In all the world is known!
Above all heavens, O king, adored,
How hast thou set thy glorious throne! Hallelujah.

Charles Jennens (1700–1773) after Psalm 8:1

SECOND LESSON
Philemon 1–21

Paul, a prisoner of Christ Jesus, and Timothy our brother,
To Philemon our dear friend and co-worker, to Apphia our sister, to Archippus our fellow-soldier, and to the church in your house:

Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

When I remember you in my prayers, I always thank my God because I hear of your love for all the saints and your faith towards the Lord Jesus. I pray that the sharing of your faith may become effective when you perceive all the good that we may do for Christ. I have indeed received much joy and encouragement from your love, because the hearts of the saints have been refreshed through you, my brother.

For this reason, though I am bold enough in Christ to command you to do your duty, yet I would rather appeal to you on the basis of love—and I, Paul, do this as an old man, and now also as a prisoner of Christ Jesus. I am appealing to you for my child, Onesimus, whose father I have become during my imprisonment. Formerly he was useless to you, but now he is indeed useful both to you and to me. I am sending him, that is, my own heart, back to you. I wanted to keep him with me, so that he might be of service to me in your place during my imprisonment for the gospel; but I preferred to do nothing without your consent, in order that your good deed might be voluntary and not something forced. Perhaps this is the reason he was separated from you for a while, so that you might have him back for ever, no longer as a slave but as more than a slave, a beloved brother—especially to me but how much more to you, both in the flesh and in the Lord.

So if you consider me your partner, welcome him as you would welcome me. If he has wronged you in any way, or owes you anything, charge that to my account. I, Paul, am writing this with my own hand: I will repay it. I say nothing about your owing me even your own self. Yes, brother, let me have this benefit from you in the Lord! Refresh my heart in Christ. Confident of your obedience, I am writing to you, knowing that you will do even more than I say.

It is right, and a good and joyful thing, always and everywhere to give thanks to you, all holy God, creator of heaven and earth. Through Jesus Christ our Lord; who on the first day of the week overcame death and the grave, and by his glorious resurrection opened to us the way of everlasting life. Therefore we praise you, joining our voices with angels and archangels and with all the company of heaven, who for ever sing this hymn to proclaim the glory of your name:

harm. The English Hymnal, 1906

1 For the beauty of the earth, for the beauty of the skies,
2 For the beauty of each hour of the day and of the night,
3 For the joy of ear and eye, for the heart and mind’s de-light,
4 For the joy of hu-man love, bro-ther, sis-ter, par-ent, child,
5 For the Church which ev-er-more lift-eth ho-ly hands a-bove,

for the love which from our birth o-ver and a-round us lies,
hill and vale, and tree and flower, sun and moon, and stars of light,
for the mys-tic har-mo-ny link-ing sense to sound and sight,
friends on earth, and friends a-bove, for all gen-tle thoughts and mild,
of-fering up on ev-ery shore thy pure sac-ri-fice of love,

Christ our Lord, to thee we raise this our hymn of grate-ful praise.
Just As I Am, without One Plea

Charlotte Elliott, 1835

WOODWORTH    LM
William B. Bradbury, 1849

1 Just as I am, without one plea, but that thy blood was shed for me, and that thou bidd’st me come to thee, O Lamb of God, I come, I come.

2 Just as I am, though tossed about with man’s conflict, man’s doubt; fightings and fears with in, without, O Lamb of God, I come, I come.

3 Just as I am, poor, wretched, blind, sight, rich es, healing of the mind, yea, all I need, in thee to find, O Lamb of God, I come, I come. I believe, O Lamb of God, I come, I come.

4 Just as I am, thou wilt receive; wilt welcome, blood was shed for me, and that thou bidd’st me come to thee, O Lamb of God, I come, I come.

5 Just as I am, thy love unknown has broken every barrier down; now to be thine, yea, thine alone, O Lamb of God, I come, I come.

6 Just as I am, of thy great love the breadth, length, depth, and height to prove, here for a season, then above: O Lamb of God, I come, I come.
Let Us Break Bread Together

Let us break bread together on our knees; (on our knees) let us break bread together on our knees; (our knees) when I fall on my knees, with my face to the rising sun, O Lord, have mercy on me. (on me)
3 Let us praise God together on our knees; [on our knees] let us praise God together on our knees; [our knees] when I fall on my knees with my face to the rising sun, O Lord, have mercy on me. [on me]

MUSIC NOTES

To mark the opening of term, we welcome the voices of candidates for membership in the Harvard University Choir, as well as returning Sunday Choir members, to sing two jubilant choral works. Premiered in 1739, Handel’s majestic oratorio Saul is the pivotal work that signifies Handel’s change from opera composer to oratorio composer. The oratorio focuses on the first king of Israel’s relationship with his eventual successor, David, as described in the First Book of Samuel. It features majestic orchestration, thrilling choruses, and vivid characterization, and it is considered one of Handel’s finest creations. Originally placed at the oratorio’s conclusion, the librettist Charles Jennens persuaded Handel to move the “Hallelujah” chorus to its present position as the climax of the song of triumph following David’s victory over the giant Goliath.

The Creation remains Joseph Haydn’s most popular work today, as it was in his lifetime; completed in 1798, it is a majestic narration of the Genesis story. “The Heavens Are Telling” is the triumphant concluding chorus of the oratorio’s first part: its choral writing is influenced by the great oratorios of Handel, while the harmonic language is firmly rooted in the classical style.

The prelude features movements from Handel’s Suite in G major, HWV 441, which closely follows the examples of Bach in formal dimensions; the postlude is Bach’s perky Fugue in G major, BWV 550.
